

WE'RE HIRING!

We simplify the life of workers in high-variance productions with an assistant system. The assistant consists of software and hardware components.

Working Student Software Development (m/w/d)

Your Skills

You already have some experience with coding in one programming language. You will be able to learn the rest with us.

You are passionate about technology and eager to learn.

Your Task

You will support us throughout the complete software development cycle and make significant contributions to the success of our product.

Your Benefits

- You will get in touch with every aspect of the development lifecycle, from understanding and defining what the customer wants to developing and installing the final product
- Join a young, but experienced team
- Competitive pay

More

- Home Office is possible
- Flexible working hours, especially in regards to your exams
- We value tolerance and open-mindedness

Send your CV to: join@traggert.de! No letter of motivation needed